Workshop is strictly limited to 32 participants. You must nominate your preference at time of registration. This workshop will also be repeated in the afternoon (32 persons maximum per workshop).

STATION 1 - AIRWAY STATION

Using airway head part task trainers, participants will use a range of different airway adjuncts and airway manoeuvres to optimise ventilation using a bag valve mask. This station will give tips and guidance on how to attain a good seal on different patients for effective ventilation.

STATION 2 - CPR STATION

Showcasing brand new software from Laerdal, this station combines technology, clinical skill and entertainment. Each participant will be guided through correct compression techniques before putting their skills to the test. The compressions performed by an individual will be translated into a digital ambulance racing across a screen. The most technically correct CPR performance (correct rate, depth, and recoil), will win the race.

STATION 3 - DEFIBRILLATION STATION

Using a Lifepak 15, this station will run through the knowledge required to achieve safe defibrillation, pacing, and cardioversion of a deteriorating patient. Using ShockLink technology, this station will allow participants to safely practise the delivery of energy, with all shock energy defused within the cable.

STATION 4 - IO EGG CHALLENGE

This station has been extremely popular during previous events, combining simulation education and competition. Using an EZ-IO drill to practise the technique of gaining intraosseous access, all participants must work together to drill as many holes as possible into a raw egg without cracking the shell.

THE STORY OF DR HADIZA BAWA-GARBA - WHAT CAN WE LEARN?

You will have heard much in the medical media online about the recent UK case of Dr Hadiza Bawa-Garba. Dr Bawa-Garba was a competent and committed doctor who made a serious mistake on one occasion in a seriously flawed hospital environment. Her medical registration has been rightfully reinstated after it was initially withdrawn when she was found guilty by a criminal court jury of gross negligence manslaughter of a young patient. Whilst there are distinct differences between the UK and Australian legal systems and how matters like this are handled, this landmark case raises the issue of who decides, and in what way junior doctors are sanctioned for errors in the workplace. Additionally, it raises the far-reaching impacts of when things go terribly wrong, and how to find a way forward. You'll hear Hadiza's story directly from her experienced legal counsel Tim Johnson, of Tim Johnson/Law who will be joining us live from London. You will also have a chance to ask questions of Tim at the end of his presentation. Katharine Philp, Partner of HWL Ebsworth will also explore what the case means locally for you, and what safe guards and measures are best-practice for you as a junior doctor.
